Mr. J. Edgar Hoover
U.S. Department of Justice
Washington, D.C.

Dear Mr. Hoover:

I am writing you today to inform you of the results of my investigation into the activities of the American Friends Service Committee (AFSC) during the period from 1945 to 1963. I have reviewed the records of the AFSC which were made available to me by the National Archives and Records Administration, and I have also conducted interviews with several individuals who were involved in the AFSC's operations during this period.

The AFSC was founded in 1917 as a result of the merger of the American Quaker Society and the American Unitarian Society. It has since become one of the largest and most active of the religiously affiliated service organizations in the United States. The AFSC's primary concern is the promotion of peace and social justice, and it has been actively engaged in a wide variety of humanitarian and social welfare projects throughout the world.

During the period from 1945 to 1963, the AFSC was heavily involved in the relief efforts following the Second World War. It provided food, clothing, and shelter for millions of displaced persons, and it played a major role in the reconstruction of war-torn Europe. In addition, the AFSC was active in the civil rights movement, and it provided financial support and logistical assistance to many of the leaders and organizations involved in this struggle.

In light of the AFSC's extensive involvement in both international relief efforts and domestic social justice work, it is not surprising that the organization has attracted the attention of various government agencies and intelligence groups. During the Cold War era, the AFSC was often viewed with suspicion, and its activities were closely monitored by the Federal Bureau of Investigation (FBI) and other law enforcement agencies. This was particularly true in the case of the AFSC's work in China, where it was accused of being a front organization for the Chinese Communist Party.

However, based on the information I have gathered, I believe that the AFSC's activities are entirely legitimate and that there is no evidence to suggest that the organization is involved in any illegal or subversive activities. The AFSC's work is purely humanitarian and social in nature, and it is dedicated to the betterment of society through peaceful means.

I am enclosing herewith a copy of a report which details the findings of my investigation. I hope that this information will be helpful to you in your ongoing efforts to monitor and regulate the activities of foreign and domestic organizations operating within the United States.

Sincerely,
